

Giovanni Dimauro was born in Taranto, Italy in 1964. He is Associate Professor at the Computer Science Department of the University of Bari since 1998. He received the Laurea degree in Computer Science from the University of Bari in 1987 and was assistant professor from 1990 to 1997. He teaches computer programming and multimedia systems. His research interest includes e-health, multimedia systems, medical informatics and pattern recognition with applications in medicine, such as new diagnosis technology for anemia and Parkinson's disease. He is the author of more than 160 articles, which have been published in scientific journals, proceedings, and books. He holds 2 patents, of which the latter pertains to the field of noninvasive anemia estimation.